

Telstra Virtual CISO

Cost-effective solution to improve your cyber security posture, progress your cyber security strategy and effectively manage risk.

Key Features

Expert Knowledge: Senior information security leader with real world CISO experience.

Tailored Solution: Telstra Purple understands that each business has unique requirements, so we'll work with you to identify your priorities and define a vCISO solution for you.

Applicability: We design our solution around your current business operations and the regulations and standards you operate within.

Analysis: of your current and projected security posture and compliance.

Strategic Development: Development of policies and procedures to close down current and projected gaps in cyber security preparedness and defences.

Flexible: The Telstra Purple vCISO service is subscription based and can flex according to your demands.

Why use a vCISO

Living and working in a digitally enabled world brings benefits and new levels of risk. Companies face increasing legal and regulatory cyber security control. Business partners seek assurance that the companies with whom they work can evidence and demonstrate their cyber security resilience.

Increasing international demand has seen the cost of hiring and retaining experienced cyber security talent rise year on year across all business sectors.

A Telstra vCISO gives your company immediate and cost-effective access to the necessary expertise and support to develop and progress your cyber security programme bringing cyber security in line with your business strategy.

The Telstra vCISO service is subscription based and can flex according to your demands. It offers substantial savings against hiring a permanent CISO and significant advantages in skill and experience against appointing or assigning CISO responsibility internally.

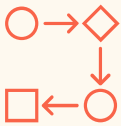

What a vCISO gives you?

- Immediate leadership to deal with security incidents and breaches, and ability to manage your organisations' threat and risk profile.
- Assurance of legal and regulatory best practice and compliance.
- Active strategic and tactical advice and guidance to protect the business from cyber threats and management of risk.
- Ability to immediately address security skills shortages

What we can deliver

We offer a vCISO Service that is customised and scaled based on the size of your organisation and industry type. The vCISO role can be defined to meet your specific needs and adapted over time.

Immediate expertise and support

Telstra vCISO's are senior information security leaders with experience in security management and driving improvement and change in both technology and practice, working seamlessly with your organisation to define, articulate and drive your information security strategy.

Strategic and Tactical leadership

Strategic and tactical advice and guidance to address business priorities and evolving security threats. Chairing and driving cyber security steering committees. Representing cyber security at board level. Managing cyber security projects to achieve defined outcomes. Assure and evidence compliance with cyber security legal, regulatory, and business obligations.

Flexible Expertise

On demand and as needed seasoned security experts, able to advise on solution architecture and design, as well as the direct management of technical resources to deliver projects faster and at lower risk.

Why Telstra?

We provide subject matter experts and professionals with CISO-level experience to lead workshops and carry out analysis.

We're not just focused on the technology solutions; we help you address the governance, risk and compliance activities necessary to improve your security posture.

We offer a pragmatic approach, shaped by over 20 years of experience delivering transformation across large, medium, and small enterprises.

We are an independent Professional Services Consultancy offering tailored advice to meet your individual needs and can provide expert support whenever you might need it.

Contact your Telstra account representative for more details.

telstraenquiry@team.telstra.com

telstra.co.uk